

Reach MORE BUYERS Through the

CLASSIFIEDS

POLITICAL OFFICE Announcements

• FOR SALE

WORLD'S FINEST

WATER PUMP

- CANNOT LOSE ITS PRIME
- No Control Valves
- Will Pump Air and Shut Off On Weak Wells
- Will Not Burn Out Seal for Lack of Water
- Practically Impossible To Freeze and Burst

Nunley Plumbing & Builder's Supply

SP 4-2232

USED cars and auto parts—distributors for Forbes rebuilt automotive parts. Have large stock of used auto parts. Buy-Sell-Trade. L. V. MILLER.
Phone SP 4-2122. 20-tfc

ATTRESES—New or renovated; box springs; foam rubber choice of firmness or softer; made and guaranteed by Western Mattress, San Angelo. Call Pemberton Furniture, Hamlin, Texas. Phone SP 4-1512. 36-tfc

Armstrong and Sandran Linoleum by the yard. 12 foot widths and seven patterns.
White's Auto Store. 49-tfc

FOR SALE—Complete set of Encyclopedia Britannica with 10 year books. 1015 N. W. 2nd.
11-4p

FOR SALE—Oak fireplace
wood. $14 per cord. Will deliver.
D. E. Baxter, Box 493, Anson.
13-1p

CLASSIFIED RATES Minimum charge 20 words

CASH RATE—
4c First Insertion
3c each additional

CHARGE RATE—
5c First Insertion
4c Each Additional

Card of Thanks—3c per word Classified Display Rates upon request

• REAL ESTATE

FOR SALE—Nice three bed room house to be moved on your lot. Will help finance.
Call SP 4-1549 after 6:30 p.m.
R. B. Spencer and Co. 31-tfc

FOR SALE—Two bedroom, two bath brick house, carpet, air conditioned, central heat, GE built-in appliance, oven and counter top range, dishwasher, combination washer-dryer. 33 NW Ave. A. Jim H. King. (Connally Ford Sales for appointment).
4 tfc

FOR SALE—Two bed room house 944 feet floor space.
Breeze way garage, fenced in yard. House has Reynolds Aluminum siding. Small down payment, and reasonable monthly payments. This house will carry an F.H.A. loan. Contact J. F. Boben, 633 N.W. Ave.
H., Hamlin, Texas. Phone
SP 4-1508. 12-4p

WANTED TO RENT or Buy —Small five room house in Hamlin reasonably close in.
Phone SP 4-1538 or 248 S.W.
2nd. Cash proposition to right party. 13-3c

FOR SALE—Complete set
of Encyclopedia Britannica with 10 year books. 1015 N. W. 2nd.
11-4p

FOR SALE—Oak fireplace
wood. $14 per cord. Will deliver.
D. E. Baxter, Box 493, Anson.
13-1p

In Hamlin Each Thursday
Hours 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Office over Waggoner Drug

The Hamlin Herald is authorized to announce the following candidates for office, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

IRONING by piece or dozen also keep children in my home hour by hour. Call SP 4-2225, 45 Southwest Ave. C. 12-2c

LADYBUGS give excellent control of Greenbugs in wheat.
For information call or write Claud Senn, CE 7-2334. Jayton, Texas. 13-4c

IRONING WANTED— 420
N.W. Ave. B, Mrs. J. A. Kidwell. 13-1p

Editor's note: The following story was written before Ernie Kovacs' recent untimely death)

Either motion picture producers promote Ernie Kovacs or he's going to quit. The zany comedian made this announcement during production of Columbia Pictures' "Sail a Crooked Ship," in which he plays a police captain whose authority is considerably undermined by Alec Guinness' "espionage" efforts. In "Pepe," he played a Captain of Immigration completely bewildered by Cantin-
flas' doubletalk.

Now, in "Sail a Crooked
Ship," Ernie plays Bugsy G.
Foglemeyer, thwarted criminal genius who pronounces himself a "Captain," and steals a ship in order to rob a bank.
With the help of kidnapped ex-Navy officer Robert Wagner,
Bugsy triumphs over fire, mutiny, hurricane, collision, Halloween, bankers, police and sundry other near-disasters.
"Sail a Crooked Ship" doesn't end with Ernie in possession of the loot, of course, but he does keep his self-appointed cap-tiancy. But, he complains,
"why couldn't I be an admiral
or a general?"

A Philip Barry production,
"Sail a Crooked Ship," also stars Frank Gorshin and features Jesse White and Harvey Lembeck. The screenplay was written by Ruth Brooks Flippen and Bruce Geller, based on the best-selling novel by Nathaniel Benchley. Philip Barry Jr.
produced "Sail a Crooked Ship" and Irving Brecher directed.

Ernie's been a captain in five of his recent films, and he thinks it's about time he was moved up a grade or two. In actual fact, considering the kind of captain he usually is,
film audiences might have their doubts about upgrading
him. In "Operation Mad Ball," for example, Ernie was an Army captain in postwar Germany whose desperate efforts to maintain discipline were cir-cumvented by Jack Lemmon
and every non-com and private around, with Ernie ultimately winding up as a suspected spy.
In "Wake Me When It's Over,"
he played a relaxed Air Force Captain in the Pacific whose antics led to the construction and operation of a major resort development, built and manned by his own men. In "Our Man

IN "OUR MAN IN
THE IRON CAGE,"
Ernie was a Cuban
police captain whose authority is undermined by Alec Guinness' "espionage" efforts. In "Pepe," he played a Captain of Immigration completely bewildered by Cantin-
flas' doubletalk.

Now, in "Sail a Crooked
Ship," Ernie plays Bugsy G.
Foglemeyer, thwarted criminal
genius who pronounces himself a "Captain," and steals a
ship in order to rob a bank.
With the help of kidnapped
ex-Navy officer Robert Wagner,
Bugsy triumphs over fire, mutiny, hurricane, collision,
Halloween, bankers, police
and sundry other near-disasters.
"Sail a Crooked Ship" doesn't
end with Ernie in possession of
the loot, of course, but he does
keep his self-appointed cap-
tiancy. But, he complains,
"why couldn't I be an admiral
or a general?"

A Philip Barry production,
"Sail a Crooked Ship," also
stars Frank Gorshin and features Jesse White and Harvey Lembeck. The screenplay was
written by Ruth Brooks Flippen
and Bruce Geller, based on the
best-selling novel by Nathaniel Benchley. Philip Barry Jr.
produced "Sail a Crooked Ship" and Irving Brecher directed.

Ernie's been a captain in five
of his recent films, and he
thinks it's about time he was
moved up a grade or two. In
actual fact, considering the
kind of captain he usually is,
film audiences might have
their doubts about upgrading
him. In "Operation Mad Ball,"
for example, Ernie was an
Army captain in postwar Germany whose desperate efforts
to maintain discipline were cir-
cumvented by Jack Lemmon
and every non-com and private
around, with Ernie ultimately
winding up as a suspected spy.
In "Wake Me When It's Over,"
he played a relaxed Air Force Captain in the Pacific whose
antics led to the construction
and operation of a major resort
development, built and manned
by his own men. In "Our Man

IN "OUR MAN IN
THE IRON CAGE,"
Ernie was a Cuban
police captain whose authority is undermined by Alec Guinness' "espionage" efforts. In "Pepe," he played a Captain of Immigration completely bewildered by Cantin-
flas' doubletalk.

Now, in "Sail a Crooked
Ship," Ernie plays Bugsy G.
Foglemeyer, thwarted criminal
genius who pronounces himself a "Captain," and steals a
ship in order to rob a bank.
With the help of kidnapped
ex-Navy officer Robert Wagner,
Bugsy triumphs over fire, mutiny, hurricane, collision,
Halloween, bankers, police
and sundry other near-disasters.
"Sail a Crooked Ship" doesn't
end with Ernie in possession of
the loot, of course, but he does
keep his self-appointed cap-
tiancy. But, he complains,
"why couldn't I be an admiral
or a general?"

A Philip Barry production,
"Sail a Crooked Ship," also
stars Frank Gorshin and features Jesse White and Harvey Lembeck. The screenplay was
written by Ruth Brooks Flippen
and Bruce Geller, based on the
best-selling novel by Nathaniel Benchley. Philip Barry Jr.
produced "Sail a Crooked Ship" and Irving Brecher directed.

Ernie's been a captain in five
of his recent films, and he
thinks it's about time he was
moved up a grade or two. In
actual fact, considering the
kind of captain he usually is,
film audiences might have
their doubts about upgrading
him. In "Operation Mad Ball,"
for example, Ernie was an
Army captain in postwar Germany whose desperate efforts
to maintain discipline were cir-
cumvented by Jack Lemmon
and every non-com and private
around, with Ernie ultimately
winding up as a suspected spy.
In "Wake Me When It's Over,"
he played a relaxed Air Force Captain in the Pacific whose
antics led to the construction
and operation of a major resort
development, built and manned
by his own men. In "Our Man

IN "OUR MAN IN
THE IRON CAGE,"
Ernie was a Cuban
police captain whose authority is undermined by
Alec Guinness' "espionage" efforts. In "Pepe," he played a Captain of Immigration completely bewildered by Cantin-
flas' doubletalk.

Now, in "Sail a Crooked
Ship," Ernie plays Bugsy G.
Foglemeyer, thwarted criminal
genius who pronounces himself a "Captain," and steals a
ship in order to rob a bank.
With the help of kidnapped
ex-Navy officer Robert Wagner,
Bugsy triumphs over fire, mutiny, hurricane, collision,
Halloween, bankers, police
and sundry other near-disasters.
"Sail a Crooked Ship" doesn't
end with Ernie in possession of
the loot, of course, but he does
keep his self-appointed cap-
tiancy. But, he complains,
"why couldn't I be an admiral
or a general?"

A Philip Barry production,
"Sail a Crooked Ship," also
stars Frank Gorshin and features Jesse White and Harvey Lembeck. The screenplay was
written by Ruth Brooks Flippen
and Bruce Geller, based on the
best-selling novel by Nathaniel Benchley. Philip Barry Jr.
produced "Sail a Crooked Ship" and Irving Brecher directed.

Ernie's been a captain in five
of his recent films, and he
thinks it's about time he was
moved up a grade or two. In
actual fact, considering the
kind of captain he usually is,
film audiences might have
their doubts about upgrading
him. In "Operation Mad Ball,"
for example, Ernie was an
Army captain in postwar Germany whose desperate efforts
to maintain discipline were cir-
cumvented by Jack Lemmon
and every non-com and private
around, with Ernie ultimately
winding up as a suspected spy.
In "Wake Me When It's Over,"
he played a relaxed Air Force Captain in the Pacific whose
antics led to the construction
and operation of a major resort
development, built and manned
by his own men. In "Our Man

IN "OUR MAN IN
THE IRON CAGE,"
Ernie was a Cuban
police captain whose authority is undermined by
Alec Guinness' "espionage" efforts. In "Pepe," he played a Captain of Immigration completely bewildered by Cantin-
flas' doubletalk.

Now, in "Sail a Crooked
Ship," Ernie plays Bugsy G.
Foglemeyer, thwarted criminal
genius who pronounces himself a "Captain," and steals a
ship in order to rob a bank.
With the help of kidnapped
ex-Navy officer Robert Wagner,
Bugsy triumphs over fire, mutiny, hurricane, collision,
Halloween, bankers, police
and sundry other near-disasters.
"Sail a Crooked Ship" doesn't
end with Ernie in possession of
the loot, of course, but he does
keep his self-appointed cap-
tiancy. But, he complains,
"why couldn't I be an admiral
or a general?"

A Philip Barry production,
"Sail a Crooked Ship," also
stars Frank Gorshin and features Jesse White and Harvey Lembeck. The screenplay was
written by Ruth Brooks Flippen
and Bruce Geller, based on the
best-selling novel by Nathaniel Benchley. Philip Barry Jr.
produced "Sail a Crooked Ship" and Irving Brecher directed.

Ernie's been a captain in five
of his recent films, and he
thinks it's about time he was
moved up a grade or two. In
actual fact, considering the
kind of captain he usually is,
film audiences might have
their doubts about upgrading
him. In "Operation Mad Ball,"
for example, Ernie was an
Army captain in postwar Germany whose desperate efforts
to maintain discipline were cir-
cumvented by Jack Lemmon
and every non-com and private
around, with Ernie ultimately
winding up as a suspected spy.
In "Wake Me When It's Over,"
he played a relaxed Air Force Captain in the Pacific whose
antics led to the construction
and operation of a major resort
development, built and manned
by his own men. In "Our Man

IN "OUR MAN IN
THE IRON CAGE,"
Ernie was a Cuban
police captain whose authority is undermined by Alec Guinness' "espionage" efforts. In "Pepe," he played a Captain of Immigration completely bewildered by Cantin-
flas' doubletalk.

Now, in "Sail a Crooked
Ship," Ernie plays Bugsy G.
Foglemeyer, thwarted criminal
genius who pronounces himself a "Captain," and steals a
ship in order to rob a bank.
With the help of kidnapped
ex-Navy officer Robert Wagner,
Bugsy triumphs over fire, mutiny, hurricane, collision,
Halloween, bankers, police
and sundry other near-disasters.
"Sail a Crooked Ship" doesn't
end with Ernie in possession of
the loot, of course, but he does
keep his self-appointed cap-
tiancy. But, he complains,
"why couldn't I be an admiral
or a general?"

A Philip Barry production,
"Sail a Crooked Ship," also
stars Frank Gorshin and features Jesse White and Harvey Lembeck. The screenplay was
written by Ruth Brooks Flippen
and Bruce Geller, based on the
best-selling novel by Nathaniel Benchley. Philip Barry Jr.
produced "Sail a Crooked Ship" and Irving Brecher directed.

Ernie's been a captain in five
of his recent films, and he
thinks it's about time he was
moved up a grade or two. In
actual fact, considering the
kind of captain he usually is,
film audiences might have
their doubts about upgrading
him. In "Operation Mad Ball,"
for example, Ernie was an
Army captain in postwar Germany whose desperate efforts
to maintain discipline were cir-
cumvented by Jack Lemmon
and every non-com and private
around, with Ernie ultimately
winding up as a suspected spy.
In "Wake Me When It's Over,"
he played a relaxed Air Force Captain in the Pacific whose
antics led to the construction
and operation of a major resort
development, built and manned
by his own men. In "Our Man

IN "OUR MAN IN
THE IRON CAGE,"
Ernie was a Cuban
police captain whose authority is undermined by Alec Guinness' "espionage" efforts. In "Pepe," he played a Captain of Immigration completely bewildered by Cantin-
flas' doubletalk.

Now, in "Sail a Crooked
Ship," Ernie plays Bugsy G.
Foglemeyer, thwarted criminal
genius who pronounces himself a "Captain," and steals a
ship in order to rob a bank.
With the help of kidnapped
ex-Navy officer Robert Wagner,
Bugsy triumphs over fire, mutiny, hurricane, collision,
Halloween, bankers, police
and sundry other near-disasters.
"Sail a Crooked Ship" doesn't
end with Ernie in possession of
the loot, of course, but he does
keep his self-appointed cap-
tiancy. But, he complains,
"why couldn't I be an admiral
or a general?"

A Philip Barry production,
"Sail a Crooked Ship," also
stars Frank Gorshin and features Jesse White and Harvey Lembeck. The screenplay was
written by Ruth Brooks Flippen
and Bruce Geller, based on the
best-selling novel by Nathaniel Benchley. Philip Barry Jr.
produced "Sail a Crooked Ship" and Irving Brecher directed.

Ernie's been a captain in five
of his recent films, and he
thinks it's about time he was
moved up a grade or two. In
actual fact, considering the
kind of captain he usually is,
film audiences might have
their doubts about upgrading
him. In "Operation Mad Ball,"
for example, Ernie was an
Army captain in postwar Germany whose desperate efforts
to maintain discipline were cir-
cumvented by Jack Lemmon
and every non-com and private
around, with Ernie ultimately
winding up as a suspected spy.
In "Wake Me When It's Over,"
he played a relaxed Air Force Captain in the Pacific whose
antics led to the construction
and operation of a major resort
development, built and manned
by his own men. In "Our Man

IN "OUR MAN IN
THE IRON CAGE,"
Ernie was a Cuban
police captain whose authority is undermined by Alec Guinness' "espionage" efforts. In "Pepe," he played a Captain of Immigration completely bewildered by Cantin-
flas' doubletalk.

Now, in "Sail a Crooked
Ship," Ernie plays Bugsy G.
Foglemeyer, thwarted criminal
genius who pronounces himself a "Captain," and steals a
ship in order to rob a bank.
With the help of kidnapped
ex-Navy officer Robert Wagner,
Bugsy triumphs over fire, mutiny, hurricane, collision,
Halloween, bankers, police
and sundry other near-disasters.
"Sail a Crooked Ship" doesn't
end with Ernie in possession of
the loot, of course, but he does
keep his self-appointed cap-
tiancy. But, he complains,
"why couldn't I be an admiral
or a general?"

A Philip Barry production,
"Sail a Crooked Ship," also
stars Frank Gorshin and features Jesse White and Harvey Lembeck. The screenplay was
written by Ruth Brooks Flippen
and Bruce Geller, based on the
best-selling novel by Nathaniel Benchley. Philip Barry Jr.
produced "Sail a Crooked Ship" and Irving Brecher directed.

Ernie's been a captain in five
of his recent films, and he thinks it's about time he was<br